

Japchoji

Paper for everyday use containing a complement of different annual plants, wood, and straw. The first mentions of this paper are from the 15th century.